Halloween Madness 2020

*Every year, traditions usher in a trick or a treat
Dressed up in costumes and looking to scare,
Memorial Park was the place to meet.*

*2020 is a little different, the world slowed its roll, things stopped for a bit, the virus has taken its toll.
But Lebanon Township neighbors, resilient are we,
COVID-19 wasn't going to stop our party!*

*Staying safe by following the guidelines,
We donned our masks and stayed apart.
We still had our fun,
While making good choices and being smart.*

*Happy, sugar loaded children surrounded,
Laughter and spirit abounded!
Creative costumes, carved pumpkins, decorated cars
How lucky to live in this community of ours!*

*For the food pantry you brought extra snacks,
Thank you for your donations,
Many are grateful for your thoughtful acts.*

*We know this mess is such a bummer,
But one day it will come to an end.
Thank you Lebanon Township families,
Despite it all, we're happy you decided to attend.
One day we'll look back and cherish the memories
made,
And the extraordinary community spirit displayed.*

A Look Back at the Past

Lebanon Township was settled mainly by the Germans in the first half of the 18th century along with the English, Scots and Irish. However, it was the Lenni Lenape who inhabited Hunterdon County along with the rest of New Jersey, Delaware, southern New York and eastern Pennsylvania long before the arrival of the Europeans.

We are fortunate to have a great deal of historical documentation that provides insight into Lebanon Township's early beginnings. Written records, photographs, first hand accounts from personal diaries, letters and postcards, meeting minutes and general store ledgers all tell a story about the creation of this community and the people who called it home. On the other hand, the Lenape Indians who lived here well before our time had no written history, aside from petroglyphs and pictographs. Petroglyphs were carved and scraped into stone surfaces. The Jennings Petroglyph, discovered in 1965 along the Delaware River in Sussex County, is a great example of an important local prehistoric rock carving. Pictographs were painted on natural surfaces such as wood, fabric, bark and other organic materials that unfortunately decayed from exposure or use. Since the European colonists did not understand their language or appreciate their culture, very little written documentation on the Lenape remains today.

Fortunately, through investigation and extensive research, archeologists, historians and anthropologists have been able to learn about the aboriginal occupation of this area. The Musconetcong Valley, which is defined as the area flanked by the Musconetcong and Schooley's Mountain ridges to the southeast, and the Pohatcong and Allamuchy Mountain ridges to the northwest, was inhabited by the Munsee band of the Lenape. They were known as the "People of the Stony Country". It's a sure bet that to this day, Lebanon Township farmers, gardeners or anyone who's tried to put a shovel in the ground, can relate to this reference to our rugged soil.

The Lenni Lenape, who inhabited this area as late as the early 1700s, created trails which were used for traversing the mountainous terrain of Hunterdon County. Later, many of these paths were used by colonists settling in the area and eventually evolved into some of the same roads we use today. One of the trails that crossed nearby was the Malayelick path. It was near the village of Pelouesse, which was located in present day Hampton and across Route 31 on the Warren County side along the banks of the Musconetcong River. A series of semi-permanent agricultural villages existed up and down the river where the indigenous people made their home for a number of years, before exhausting the land and moving on. Access to water and fertile soil were primary factors in the locations they favored.

Not far from Lebanon Township, the largest known Paleo-Indian site in New Jersey (22 acres) was discovered in the early 1950s along the banks of the Musconetcong River in Asbury. The Paleo-Indian period in the Northeast lasted from about 12,000 BC to 10,000 BC. According to local archaeologist Herbert Kraft, indigenous people may have been attracted to the site for a number of factors: raw material availability, strategic point of animal migration, proximity to water and plant resources, and warmer seasonal temperatures. Kraft wrote numerous books about the Lenni Lenape and Paleo-Indians of New Jersey. In 1982, he donated a significant number of local Native American artifacts to the Lebanon Township Museum, which are on display on the second floor.

For Native Americans, the land held spiritual and practical significance and was shared by all living creatures. Like air, sun and water, it was an essential ingredient in life. In contrast, the Europeans viewed land as property to be owned, to be bought, sold, divided and inherited. In their homeland, Europeans didn't have the right to fish, hunt, farm, to take firewood or use land for recreational purposes without permission from the landowner. As it does for us today, the law protected property owner's rights. But here in the New World, this idea of land ownership was foreign to the Lenape, and as a result, it led to a tenuous co-existence. While the colonists understood their gifts to be a means to trade for land, the Lenape saw them as an offering with the intention to share the land and co-exist. With the language barrier, it must have been impossible for the Lenni-Lenape to understand that they were signing away their land for trinkets.

In the end, the reality is, a lot of land was taken without permission. Over 150,000 acres were traded with metal knives and pots, clothing, blankets, barrels of rum or hard cider, guns, powder, and shot. This allowed for European settlers to enter into Hunterdon County in the early 18th century. By 1760, nearly all the Lenape had left New Jersey, forced to leave their native lands, never again living as they had before the arrival of the Europeans.

Hunters of the Past

Hunting season is underway here in New Jersey and that's got us thinking about the hunting memorabilia in our archive. Do you recognize the barn and hilly roadway in the image below? That's Waldy Bagat's farm on Hickory Run Road. These folks didn't have much help in regards to clothing, gear, and electronics back then. No big cozy blind to keep the cold wind off of you. No scent killers. No scopes. No camo!

And those cars! We just can't help but swoon over images like this, beautiful scenes of another era in Lebanon Township. Two decades after these photos were taken, Waldy's generosity was instrumental in the development of the Hickory Run Family Practice on Route 513.

Every hunt has something about it that makes it special to the people who experienced it. Photographs like these that preserve a memory, a place and time, give us a glimpse of what our community was once like. Have a hunting story or photo to share? The historians would love to hear from you. Send an email to Historians@lebtwp.net.

Feeling A Little Frosty

I find something magical about winter. As the days get shorter and the air gets colder, it is easy to lose our senses of sight and wonder. Let's shift our thoughts to see the beauty of winter.

Let us reflect on why we love this season. Waking to a snowy morning, no school for the kids, and playing in the snow. Let's savor the taste of our cup of hot chocolate and watch the snow glisten on the trees. Find the beauty in all this and all of the seasons, as we find the beauty in all of human kind.

Museum

From the Museum ...

The extended museum closure has provided ample opportunity for researching not only the many fascinating artifacts here but also the many exceptional people who have called Lebanon Township home, from common factory workers and janitor-artists (yes, we've had more than one!) to medical pioneers and Hollywood starlets. Here are some of their stories:

A 1913 photograph of laborers of the Hopatcong Worsted Mill in Changewater came our way with just one person identified: 15-year-old Mabel Weyant, pictured below on the left. We have learned that she was born in New Hampton to William and Mabel "Fanny" Hoffman Weyant. She and her siblings Nellie, Maggie, William and Elmer all attended the New Hampton School (now the museum). Aside from working at the Mill, Mabel also cleaned for Dr. Knox.

Mabel Weyant's younger sister, Maggie Weyant Mattison, attended a reunion for former New Hampton School students held at the museum in 1982.

Dr. Howard Andrew Knox received his medical doctorate from Dartmouth College in 1908 and then accepted a position as a First Lieutenant in the US Army's newly formed Medical Reserve Corps. He retired from the military and began a private practice while studying and publishing articles on psychology and intelligence testing. In 1912, he was rehired by the Army and took a position administering intelligence tests at Ellis Island. Dr. Knox's groundbreaking work took language and cultural differences into consideration when administering intelligence tests to immigrants. His research, including the development of his Knox Cube Imitation Test, has served as an important link to present-day intelligence testing.

In 1922, he moved to New Hampton and opened a private practice in his home on Musconetcong River Road. He died in 1949 and was buried at the Musconetcong Valley Cemetery in Hampton.

A wooden door from Dr. Knox's office had an idyllic country scene painted on it by local artist Isaac Sharps. Ike, as he was known, was not only a talented visual artist but an accomplished musician as well, who was said to have played for all the local affairs. Harry Rymon, whose family still owns and operates Rymon & Sons on Route 31 in Washington, was a New Hampton School student who recollected taking fiddle lessons from Mr. Sharps. Ike's sister, Mary, was a beloved teacher and, for a time, Ike also worked at the school as the custodian.

H. Donald Ross was born in a house on Musconetcong River Road and then built a house next door to live in with his wife Rosalie.

A self-taught artist who never pursued his art professionally, Don worked for several years as a carpenter before health problems forced him to take up a job as a janitor at Woodglen School. After a student showed the principal a Christmas card that Mr. Ross had made, he was also hired as the school's part-time art teacher, a position he maintained along with being a custodian for 13 years.

Over 48 years, he made nearly 500 commissioned paintings, mainly of historical places in Hunterdon county. He won numerous awards for his pastels over the years and founded the Kittatinny Art Association. When he and his wife retired to Florida in 1986, the community rallied to have a going away art show in his honor.

Martha Lorber was born in Brooklyn, New York on June 11, 1900, and began her Broadway career when she was still in her teens. She played in the Ziegfeld Follies with Will Rogers in the 1920s and was able to show off her comedic talent when she played opposite W.C. Fields for some of the Ziegfeld sketches.

In the 1930s, she broke away from musicals for a string of more dramatic roles. In 1941, she toured in a one-woman show called Songs in Action and in 1951 she was hired by the US State Department for a cultural relations position. She was also a model, posing for works by pin-up artist Alberto Vargas, sculptor Harriet Whitney Frishmuth and several world-famous photographers.

In 1965, she retired to a home on Musconetcong River Road and dedicated herself to transforming her backyard into a lush oasis inspired by Monet's gardens. She became an active member of the Hunterdon Hills Garden Club. She died at home at the age of 83.

REGARDED AS "BEST BET" AMONG AMERICAN DANCERS

To be the premier dancer, at the age of nineteen, in a big spectacle like "Mecca," which comes to the Lyric theatre on Friday and Saturday, March 17 and 18 and in addition, to be the special protégée of no less a genius than Michel Fokine, the famous creator of the Russian Ballet, is exactly what has happened to Miss Martha Lorber, a Brooklyn girl who, until she graduated from the Brooklyn High school, four years ago and made her stage debut in "The Wanderer," had never entertained any thought of winning distinction as a dancer. Yet on the night of the premier of "Mecca" at the Century theatre, New York, in Miss Lorber the first-nighters found something to rave over. It was her metropolitan debut, and while her name had been unheard of, to say that her performance in the Bacchanale number created a sensation is to put it mildly. She took one big curtain call all by herself.

When Morris Gest was putting on "The Wanderer" at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, back in 1917 he advertised for dancing girls. Martha was just out of high school, applied, and was engaged. The principal dancer of the ballet was Ekaterina Galanta, the beautiful Russian girl. She took a fancy to Martha and adopted her as a pupil, with the result that when Galanta suddenly departed for South America, Mr. Gest placed this sixteen-year-old toratchorean artiste in the role of the principal dancer, and as such she went on tour, returning to New York last

Building Strong Bones

By Nick Avallone, M.D.

Building and maintaining healthy bone structure are critical to preventing the challenging disease called osteoporosis. This brittle bone disease most commonly occurs in Caucasian females over 60 years old, and it can have devastating consequences. Fragility of the bones of the hip, spine and wrist can cause fractures in these regions that can greatly affect the function and overall health of an individual. Modifications in diet and exercise one can make as a child can significantly decrease the chances of suffering from osteoporosis later in life.

The development of healthy bones starts in early childhood. Golden and colleagues found that children attain 90% of their peak bone density by age 18. Moreover, 40-60% of bone mass is achieved during the years of adolescence with the 2 years surrounding the peak height velocity or growth spurt accounting for 25% of peak bone mass. Thus, the risk for suffering an osteoporosis-related fracture later in life is largely determined by the time a child reaches adulthood.

There are a number of factors that contribute to a person's risk for developing osteoporosis. Gender and race cannot be altered, however nutrition, activity level and hormonal influences can be modified. Calcium is an essential building block for strong bones. At no other time in life is calcium more necessary than the teenage years when 1,300 mg per day are required to achieve peak bone mass. However, vitamin D is an essential partner for calcium to be absorbed by the body. Without vitamin D, only 10-15% of calcium can be absorbed. Thus, teenagers are also recommended to have a daily intake of 800 international units of vitamin D. A list from the National Osteoporosis Foundation of high calcium foods includes: ricotta 4 oz - 335 mg, sardines 3 oz - 325 mg, plain yogurt 6 oz - 310 mg, milk 8 oz - 300 mg, cooked collard greens 1 cup - 266 mg, canned salmon 3 oz - 180 mg, cooked soybeans 1 cup - 175 mg, 1 whole orange - 55 mg. Dietary guidelines published by the Department of Health and Human Services identifies many forms of fish as excellent sources of vitamin D including salmon, rainbow trout, swordfish, whitefish, mackerel, tuna, halibut and herring. Other dietary sources of vitamin D include mushrooms, milk, yogurt, pork, egg yolks, fortified cereals and fortified orange juice. However, the human body can also produce its own vitamin D through exposure to sunlight. Harvard Health discusses balancing the risk of skin cancer with the need for vitamin D and suggests that dietary sources of vitamin D are a better option. There are also calcium and vitamin D pills and gummies that can be added to a person's diet to supplement daily intake.

Activity level has a significant effect on bone density. Walking, jogging, weight lifting and jumping all increase demand on the skeletal structure and promote increased bone strength. Astronauts who spend a significant amount of time orbiting Earth in a microgravity environment suffer from decreased bone density and must exercise regularly to limit that negative effect. New evidence from studies out of Spain and Portugal in pre-school and teenage children found that the most physically fit children also had the best bone strength. Therefore, encourage your children to play outside, and set a good example for them by finding time to exercise every day.

Men and women rely upon different hormones to increase bone mass. Testosterone largely drives bone deposition in males, particularly during puberty. Estrogen levels affect bone mineral density in females. During the years immediately following menopause, women see the greatest decrease in bone density. Similarly, if a female goes through a time when they are not having menstrual cycles (amenorrhea), this can have negative effects on bone density that can cause stress fractures in some individuals and may cause a higher risk for osteoporosis later in life. It is recommended to talk with one's primary care physician about amenorrhea to determine its cause and potential treatment interventions.

Squiers Point Historians

SQUIERS POINT HISTORIANS UPDATE

The Squiers Point Historians of Lebanon Township, Inc. is pleased to announce the construction of a new outbuilding on the grounds of the Township of Lebanon Museum at New Hampton.

In 2019, the Squiers Point Historians accepted a donation of an antique bobsled from the Polt family who, for years, transported children to school in Lebanon Township. They then employed Dennis Dillon of Point Mountain Carpentry, a local historic preservation advocate, to stabilize it and donated it to the Lebanon Township Historians to be placed at the Lebanon Township Museum. This horse drawn bobsled was used to transport children to the Changewater district school in Lebanon Township in the 1920s. As the museum itself is a former schoolhouse, an early school omnibus helps tell the story of our local educational system more completely.

The antique bobsled had been subjected to outside weather conditions for many years, and as stabilization work began on the sled, it quickly became apparent that appropriate space for safe storage and display would be needed. Thanks to the joint effort by the Squiers Point Historians and the Township's Historians Committee, a new outbuilding on the museum grounds was proposed to house the bobsled along with other items which may be acquired by the museum. Thanks to our shed builder, Lancaster County Barns, the annex building is now complete.

The new Carriage Shed Museum Annex lives up to its name; expanding the amount of space available to the museum staff to create interactive, visually appealing and interesting exhibits for the enjoyment and education of the public. The main room features the restored bobsled as the focal point in providing a glimpse of historic life in our agricultural community.

Once the interior exhibit is complete and Covid-19 social distancing restrictions are lifted, the Carriage Shed Museum Annex will be open to the public from April through October or by request on days the museum is open. Please check the museum's website for information on a future dedication ceremony.

The Squiers Point Historians of Lebanon Township, Inc. is proud to introduce this year's Keepsake Ornament.

This elegant 3" porcelain disk features an original William Martin watercolor painting of the picturesque Woodglen schoolhouse, an historic building that was recently restored by its owners.

Lebanon Township acquired the land for the school from the Apgar family in 1848 and originally built a stone building for "education, religious worship and singing school purposes." This was replaced by a frame structure in the early 1900s that was used into the 1950s, at which time it was decommissioned as a schoolhouse. After falling into disrepair, the property was reacquired in 2019 by the Rich family, descendants of the original landowners.

The "Old Woodglen School" has been lovingly restored and features the original Meneely Bell in the cupola. The schoolhouse's remarkable transformation has been noticed by all who have seen it but might be admired the most by the many former students who still reside in the township.

Artist William Martin, of Lebanon Township, can often be found competing in plein air painting events throughout the region. He is a professional artist whose illustration work has been featured in numerous publications and mediums. He frequently shares his paintings on social media and his personal website <http://billdrawseverything.com>.

Each of these exquisite ornaments comes with a gold cord and elegant box for gift giving. They are being offered at $10 each or 3 for $25; all proceeds support the historic preservation initiatives of the 501c non-profit Squiers Point Historians. Also available for purchase are canvas tote bags, stoneware pottery featuring the Lebanon Township Museum, and 2016-2019 ball ornaments highlighting historic township buildings. The 2020 Old Woodglen School Keepsake Ornaments will be available to purchase in person at the Woodglen General Store and at Solstice Floral Shop. If you would like to purchase any of the above listed merchandise electronically, please send an email to squierspoint@gmail.com to request a link to our new online shop.

Recycling

Recycling has Changed

Lebanon Township will no longer be holding the monthly Recycling Depot in the parking lot behind the Municipal Building. Instead, a recycling dumpster has been placed in the parking lot and is available for residents to drop off their recyclable materials at any time. The dumpster will be emptied on a weekly basis.

Please understand that it is extremely important that materials placed in the dumpster, are actually recyclable. The service provider scrutinizes the contents of the dumpster; if there are too many non-recyclable materials, none of the material will be recycled and will instead be sent to a landfill.

Please refer to the information below to determine whether or not something can be placed in the recycling dumpster. Detailed information is also available at <https://recyclingsimplified.com/recycling-basics/>.

DO Recycle these Items:

- Glass bottles or jars with lids attached
- Plastic bottles or jugs with lids attached
- Metal cans
- Flattened cardboard
- Non-mixed paper – remove bubble wrap from padded envelopes and plastic windows from paper envelopes

DON'T Recycle these Items:

- Plastic bags of any kind
- Items which are wet
- Items which contain food or food residue, including pizza boxes with grease residue
- Bubble wrap or Styrofoam
- Unattached lids – they are too small – instead, attach them to the bottle or jug they came from

- ★ We have known Sharon for a number of years and can't say enough about her approach, knowledge and professionalism. She is responsive and follows through on all pending items to ensure as smooth a process as possible. Having her involved in the sale of our home made all the difference in the world; we were able to focus on the bigger picture rather than the many small details you sometimes have to inquire about or remind your realtor. This greatly reduced our stress and afforded us peace of mind in an already arduous undertaking. I know several homeowners who utilized Sharon to both purchase a home or sell their homes, all were happy with her and would use her again. Best realtor both my husband and I have used over the years.
- ★ Sharon has a great deal of experience and did a superb job of getting my home sold. I contacted her because she was highly recommended by neighbors that had sold their home. Sharon had her photographer showcase my home beautifully and it was under contract in 17 days! There were plenty of showings which resulted in the home selling for more than the asking price. She guided me through all the inspections, so the closing went smoothly. She recommends licensed professionals if needed that get things done. The attorney she recommended for closing worked seamlessly for the closing. She will come out and look at your home and give recommendations prior to the listing that will save time and money. If you are thinking of selling your home I found it beneficial to contact her several months in advance as her suggestions will head you in the right direction of where to expend effort and what can be left alone and price accordingly. I would highly recommend Sharon. She has a wealth of experience, works as a team with others, and is very professional.

Sharon is proud to have earned the Five Star Highest Rating on Zillow.

Lebanon Township PTA Membership

The Lebanon Township PTA (LTPTA) serves both Valley View (preK-4) and Woodglen (5-8) Schools. Our mission is to make every child's potential a reality by engaging and empowering families and communities to advocate for all children. By supporting the LTPTA, you are supporting your school, your children and your community.

We have 134 LTPTA members and counting. THANK YOU! Your membership is the strength and foundation of our PTA. When you become a member, you are joining parents and teachers to help our schools provide a quality education and positive learning environment for our children. We invite you to attend our (virtual) meetings and to get involved. The LTPTA depends on volunteer participation and input to be successful. We want to hear from you!

Dues are $10 annually and you can register and pay online at our new MemberHub site <https://lebtwppta.new.memberhub.store/store>. A portion of your membership dues also supports the National PTA and the New Jersey State PTA, which create policies that support the educational needs of children and promote family engagement and strong partnerships between schools and the communities they serve.

Invest in Your Child

The LTPTA raises money through membership, fundraising and donations. Funding is necessary to provide a safe and effective learning experience for our school community. Therefore, the LTPTA is launching an Invest in Your Child fundraising campaign. This campaign will help replace lost revenue from canceled events and allow the LTPTA to implement new strategies to support distance learning, social/emotional health and family engagement throughout the year.

The best part...

- 100% of your Invest in Your Child donation will benefit the LTPTA community
- You don't have to buy anything you don't want or need
- Donations are tax-deductible

With each suggested $25 donation to the Invest in Your Child campaign, the LTPTA will be in a stronger position to positively impact our children's school experience during an especially challenging year. We understand families may be experiencing financial hardship and this is not intended to be a burden. We welcome any and all contributions.

To support our fundraiser, please visit <https://lebtwppta.new.memberhub.store/store>. We also invite you to like and follow us on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/LTPTA/>. For more information, please contact us at info@lebtwppta.org.

ATTENTION DOG OWNERS - NEW FEES

2021 dog license renewals are due by January 31, 2021. State Statute requires owners of all dogs seven months of age or older to annually apply to the licensing clerk of the municipality in which he or she resides for a dog license. In order for the license to be issued, the owner must present proof that a licensed veterinarian has vaccinated the dog against rabies and that the duration of immunity from that vaccination extends through at least ten months of the twelve-month licensing period. An exemption to the rabies inoculation requirement shall be granted if the owner presents written certification from a licensed veterinarian that the dog cannot be vaccinated due to a medical condition or course of therapy.

Please renew your dog's 2021 license in January to avoid the late fee!

NEW LICENSE FEES: unaltered dog - $15, altered dog - $12.
LATE REGISTRATION FEE: beginning February 1, an additional $25 late fee per dog.

From February 1, 2021 on, the fee for renewal is $40 for an unaltered dog or $37 for an altered dog. Make checks payable to Lebanon Township Dog Account or LTDA.

If you have recently moved to the township or have adopted a new dog, an application for licensing your new addition can be found on the township website at www.lebanontownship.net/departments/clerk.aspx or you may come to the Municipal Building, Monday - Friday, 8:00 - 11:00 am or 1:00 - 4:30 pm to register your dog. Please bring a current rabies certificate, the certificate if spayed or neutered and payment by cash or check. Sorry we do not accept credit or debit cards.

The Task Masters, A Group of Lebanon Township Teens Work To Raise Money In Support Of The Outreach Connection

Voorhees High School Sophomore 16-year-old Liam McGreevy, decided he wanted to work this summer and help people due to the coronavirus pandemic. He offered to work to help people with tasks they couldn't complete. There was such a large demand that he recruited four of his friends to join in - John Hanlon, Becket Thomas, Chris Saam and Nick Burinsky. They all agreed that working to help the community and a local charity was a great initiative. They call themselves the Task Masters. They began their quest in June just after the school year and plan to continue for years to come.

“It was right at the beginning of COVID. I wanted to get into the working world and realized it was a good time – people needed stuff done,” Liam said in an interview on WCBS Radio 880.

“After I worked for my first few clients and got some excellent reviews it snowballed,” McGreevy said.

The demand was so high he felt he could earn more than he or his friends needed for themselves.

“I started thinking that I, as a child, don't need that much money. I figured I could donate part of the earnings to charity. I asked my friends, and they agreed.” said the 16-year-old.

Working together they raised $1,000 to donate to the local food bank and clothing outlet, The Outreach Connection run by Shannon Laul.

“At that age, to choose not to keep all the money for themselves, especially working physically hard, is pretty amazing,” she said in an interview on WCBS Radio 880.

The teens are happy to give back during these difficult times and hope it can help not only those in need but also help the community check off their task lists.

“It makes me and my friends feel proud to be a part of something that helps people,” McGreevy said.

They are balancing classes at home and in school and they will continue to do what they can throughout the school year while also looking ahead to continually make a difference.

Local resident and homeowner Venetia Weeks said, “Although they are young, they work really hard. They show up on time, take direction, hardly take breaks, and they're just a great group.”
